how do I set the default language for all users to english porkpie: logout and login to the new session. ejv: I tried that, and got a few errors. I'm not sure what to do after that s1:I have about 6 users ejv: I installed xfce and it worked fine, though, I didn't use it. j_ayen_green: try uninstalling, then reinstalling xfce4 porkpie: you can do it through the GUI, just like login with the new session.. that's what i'd try first s1:actually would like to do it from the ubuntu control center ejv: I can log into xfce, but I'd rather not use it, if possible porkpie: like. logout, click on the little cog icon,, open system settings, click Language. and set it. ejv: okay, one sec, I'll try that s1:yep thats what I tried last time but it only changed on a login well as long as you can log into the desktop, who cares what DE it is ejv: alright, that worked, I'm back to gnome j_ayen_green: cool ejv: there's no way I could have gotten the control panel to open without admin privileges, right? I'm not used to Unity, it looks so clean and minimal that I'd say that I could at least edit some settings porkpie: see i never touched that GUI, but i can guide you to the basic language settings. j_ayen_green: if you installed using the standard ubuntu installer i'd say yes, but if you used the xubuntu-desktop, i don't think so. 82157476af
